Berlin Advertisement Offers to Exchange 20 Men and 30 Girls for Other Hands.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 16.—The conditions of semi-slavery in which Polish laborers in Germany are living is illustrated by an advertisement appearing in a recent issue of the Deutsche Tageszeitung, offering to exchange fifty Polish laborers, twenty men and thirty girls, for the same number of other hands.

One of the first acts of the newly formed Polish Council of Regency was to submit a demand for the better treatment of Polish workers. The laborers are not permitted to change masters nor to move from place to place without a special Government authorization.
